

Astra inclinant, sed non obligant

No one is coming, it's up to us

Defense Guild Consortium of

Product Management

in conduct unimpeachable

Product Management is a guild focused on organization. Facilitating conversation, managing scope, and ensuring delivery are the hallmark duties of Product Management. Guild members have the chief responsibility of managing responsibilities.

In Your Last Job

PMs in your last job may have been defacto middle management, a confusion on Product Management, or had their duties include a myriad of miscellaneous program needs that went otherwise unfilled. Your interaction with a PM likely varied by way of company rank, responsibility, and department.

At The Defense Digital Service

Product Management Guild members at DDS are masters of scope, progress, and communication. You'll interact with them closely, as they will champion adherence to a project plan, they'll ensure resource availability, maintain an ironclad control of scope, and calibrate expectations. You can expect PM guild members to be your right-hand at DDS, getting you what you need to get work done - and shipped.

Scope

Management of the scope of projects, ensuring what we commit is what we deliver.

Priority

Finding the right people, determining what's necessary and what's not, and keeping everything on the rails.

Delivery

DDS ships. Guild members will deliver, recap, communicate, and champion.